April deadlines near

Only six qualify for Bay elections

By BRENT MACEY

Improvement and expansion of city utility services appears to be the primary issue among candidates for places on the ballot in the forthcoming Bay St. Louis municipal election.

Only three incumbents and three challengers have qualified thus far for the five council seats and the mayor's position to be contested in a May election.

Deadline for candidates to qualify for the election is April 3 for independents and April 11 for party candidates.

Two council incumbents have declared they will not seek reelection, and a third remains undecided.

A Bay St. Louis contractor Friday declined to confirm or deny reports he intends to seek a council seat, and the single challenger for the mayor's post has not yet qualified for that race.

Mayor Larry Bennett has qualified for reelection.

He is expected to face opposition from Victor Frankiewicz, a Mississippi Bureau of Marine Resources official currently on leave from that position.

Ward Three Councilman Harry Farve and Councilman-at-large Wilmer Seymour have qualified for reelection.

Councilmen Pete Benvenuti of Ward One and Fred Wagner of Ward Four have both stated they will not seek reelection.

James Thriffley, Ward Two councilman, St. Stanislaus High School mathematics teacher and insurance agent, said Friday he is still undecided about seeking reelection.

Already qualified to seek Thriffley's Ward Two slot are Clyde Ladner, a veteran South Central Bell employee, and Clarence Ladner, a retired state employee.

Retired Senior Volunteer Program employee Charles Johnson has qualified for the Ward Three councilman post.

Home builder Ronnie Artigues, reported to be a candidate for the Ward One councilman post, Friday declined to confirm those reports.

"I have not qualified and I prefer not to make any further comment at this time," Artigues said.

Incumbent Mayor Larry Bennett said, "I am running again because I have enjoyed working for the people of Bay St. Louis."

The 42-year-old mayor who is seeking a second term said, "We have started things during my first term which I would like to see implemented. I hope the people are kind enough to let me work for them another four years."

The mayor mentioned the addition of a water line on US-90 during his past term as a first step toward further work needed to be done during the upcoming term.

"I want to have water and sewerage on the highway from city limits to city limits," he said and added he also wants to add water and sewer service to annexed areas of the city.

"It will help the city to grow," he said.

"People will be a lot more willing to invest and build homes if they have water and sewerage," he added.

Bennett said the major issue in the campaign is "good government."

"People want to see their officials present a united front and I think we owe that to the people," he said.

When asked if the present administration has accomplished this, Bennett said, "We have had differences on some issues but I have tried to get along with the council and tried to implement programs based on the wishes of the majority of the people of Bay St. Louis."

Bennett is a proponent of a county-run wastewater program and a member of the Waveland Wastewater Authority.

On the issue of closed workshop meetings every other Thursday night, Bennett said that policy is up to the councilmen.

Bennet said the meetings have been organized to help the councilmen "prepare" for the legally scheduled meetings.

"Since councilmen are only part-time city employees, those closed meetings make them more aware of problems faced on a daily basis," he said.

"It depends on the councilmen," he added. "Some think they can handle everything in the formal meeting and some want to review things beforehand. It's up to them."

The 26-year-old Frankiewicz said, "I have not qualified yet but I plan to do so within the next week."

Frankiewicz said he would run "because a lot more can be done to improve the city with existing taxes."

Second Shuttle external tank is lifted to test stand here Monday

NSTL testing second Space Shuttle tank

The external propellant tank for the second Space Shuttle flight has been transported by barge to NASA's National Space Technology Laboratories, in Hancock County.

The tank, developed under direction of NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, was shipped March 7 from Marshall's Michoud Assembly Facility in New Orleans where it was manufactured by Martin Marietta Corp.

Early last week the tank was lifted into a vertical position and installed in the Main Propulsion test stand at NSTL.

It will be filled with liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen propellants during a one-day test, scheduled for the first week in April.

The purpose of this test is to validate under cryogenic conditions exceeding the expected flight level that a thermal protection system is properly bonded to the tank's aluminum skin.

Television cameras on the test stand will allow Marshall Center and Rockwell International engineers to monitor the surface of the tank's insulation while the tank is being filled.

After the propellants have been drained, a close-up visual inspection will be made of the tank's insulation.

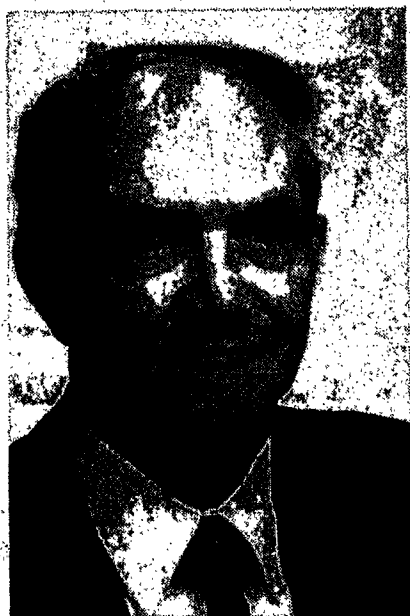

The 154-foot-long, 27.5-foot-diameter tank is covered with a foam insulation approximately one inch thick. In certain areas which will be subjected to higher temperatures during flight due to aerodynamic heating, a cork-filled ablator is applied under the foam.

Earlier this year, during the first propellant tanking of the first flight tank at the Kennedy Space Center, a small portion of the underlying ablator debonded from the tank's aluminum skin.

Engineers devised this extra test to preclude a possible recurrence of the problem during launch processing of the second Shuttle flight.

After test results have been evaluated, the second tank will be shipped to the Kennedy Space Center in Florida. The tank is expected to arrive at Kennedy the last week in April.

Burglars hit US-90 tire store

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The Bay St. Louis Police Department is investigating a recent burglary at a US-90 tire company.

Chief Douglas Williams Friday reported that on March 2 at 8:30 a.m. Tim Delcuze telephoned the police department to report the incident which occurred at West Brothers Tire Co.

"The thieves apparently broke through the roof of the building at night and stole four Grand Prix rims and tires, 50 acorn nuts and a winch," Williams stated.

"This incident and several others are under investigation by Bay police," Williams said.

The police chief also reported there were some 15 burglaries in residential areas of the city during January.

He added that six of the burglaries have been solved.

"Five breaking and enterings occurred in February and one has been reported this month," Williams noted.

Regarding a recent Crime Prevention Seminar sponsored by the department and Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, Williams reported, "We would like to thank merchants and residents who attended the two-day seminar."

"We thank the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District for providing the Bay Senior High School library and gymnasium for this event," the chief said.

"We also appreciate refreshments donated for the event by Pitalo's Supermarket," he noted.

Williams thanked Joe Himel and James Adams of the New Orleans Police Department for speaking at the seminar and for also conducting a special anti-crime meeting for members of the Hancock County Senior Citizens Program.

CHAMBER BREAKFAST SPEAKER—Phillip W. Langston, right, administrator of Hancock General Hospital, Friday morning told Hancock County Chamber of Commerce members at a Morning Call Breakfast at Sirlin Stockade in Waveland that Hospital Corporation of America is developing a long-range plan of operation for the facility to be based on input from medical staff, hospital staff and members of the community. Sharing a lighter moment with Langston is Richard Keeshan, chamber president. (Staff photo by Edgar Perez)

Fire fighters trained at Diamondhead

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

A Hancock County Volunteer Fire Fighter School was conducted by the Mississippi State Fire Academy and hosted by the Diamondhead Fire Department, Monday through Thursday nights.

Instructor Ed Friloux of the Diamondhead Fire Department notes, "Under regulations recently proposed to the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, fire fighters must have at least 24 hours training each year even after receiving a diploma from the state."

"There were 70 fire fighters who took the course of which 45 were from Hancock. The other 25 were from Harrison County," he reported.

"Fire fighters from Hancock County taking the course were from Bay St. Louis, Clermont Harbor, Diamondhead, East Hancock, Waveland and West Hancock," Friloux stated.

"Personnel from all over the county except BaySide Park Volunteer Fire Department attended," the instructor noted.

"Carrier and Nicholson Fire Departments in Pearl River County

Friday his company will build an approximate $100,000 steel-frame hanger building as soon as the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission and County Board of Supervisors approve the proposal.

The commission Thursday night approved submitting a change order to the Economic Development Administration for its industrial airport.

sent fire fighters along with firemen from Delisle and Lizana," Friloux said.

Subjects taught in the four-day course were "Arson Detection for the Nossleman" and "Pump Operations." "Most fire fighters attending received a certificate of training," Friloux stated.

"The goal of these classes is two-fold. The obvious one is to train the fire fighter to be more professional and the second is to obtain a basic fire fighting diploma issued by the State Fire Academy," he explained.

"Deputy Chief of the Diamondhead Fire Department, Richard Pate, completed his requirements and will be receiving his diploma from the state," Friloux noted.

"Several of the persons taking the course already have their diploma and were just adding hours to their diploma," he said.

"It takes 90 hours to get a diploma. This course gave 12 hours credit," Friloux stated.

"This is an effort to make the county's fire fighters more professional," he added.

road now under construction.

EDA recently approved a grant to build the roadway and to install sewer crossings and water lines along that artery.

Initial plans called for the road to parallel the east side of the runway, northward from the terminal building to the north runway apron.

Project Engineer Michael Smith of Advanced Developments, Inc. of Bay St. Louis informed the commission, "We will prepare a change order to extend the road south of the terminal building to the proposed aviation area."

"The total cost of the project is $38,505," he noted.

"We had to reduce the load limits on the roads to 40,000 pounds which is adequate for access to general aviation facilities," Smith explained.

"This will facilitate Ewing who wants to build a hanger building in this area," the engineer reported.

Smith said his conversations with EDA officials indicated no problems would arise from the change order.

Ewing Friday reported, "There are two locations the county fathers are considering for the hanger building. One to the north of the terminal building and one to the south."

"Whatever site the county decides will be acceptable, but south of the terminal building will be in line with the airport's master plan," Ewing explained.

"We're just waiting for the county's ok," he added.

Commission Director W. Wilson Webre also explained Thursday just after the commission meeting that the airport master plan calls for aviation development south of the terminal building and industrial development north of the facility.

Ewing said the new facility would also provide additional ramp space for outdoor parking of aircraft.

He noted Stennis aircraft parking spaces are filled and Bay Aviation has a waiting list of customers which would completely fill the proposed hanger and additional ramp.

Ewing explained, "We will lease land from the county for the hanger facility and at the end of a 20-year period the building will be owned by the county."

"We can't take anymore aircraft with our present facilities and we've got every type of plane here from a private jet on down," he reported.

"We've got the largest glider operation in South Mississippi which includes 20 gliders and three tow planes," Ewing noted.

"We expect to fly more than 4,000 glider flights in 1981," he speculated.

"As the economy improves and when we get more people in this area we plan to begin charter flights and enlarge our maintenance facility," he stated.

"Soaring is really being promoted and is going over big," Ewing added.

Power firm warns against refund charges

A number of Mississippi Power Company customers have reported receiving letters from a utility rate auditing firm offering to assist them in obtaining any refund or credit to which they are entitled.

The cost to the customer would be 50 percent of any refund or credit which they receive.

The following statement was issued, by Mississippi Power Company to help ensure that customers are not misled into believing that this type of service is necessary in order for them to receive a refund or credit.

"Mississippi Power Company customers do not need to contract the services of utility rate auditing firms in order to receive any refund or credit to which they are entitled.

Customers do not have to pay any fee in order to receive a check or credit to which they are entitled.

Mississippi Power Company is preparing a refunding plan concerning the recent $55 million Peabody Coal Company settlement. This plan will be filed with the Public Service Commission for its approval.

All of the money from the settlement, except expenses for litigation and distribution of the refunds, plus any accrued interest to the time of refund, will be returned to the customers in the form of checks or credits on their electric service bills.

Any customer having a question about refunds or credits should contact Mississippi Power Company or the Public Service Commission before signing letters of agreement with private auditing firms.

VA questions and answers

Q. Can a son or daughter enrolled in Veterans Administration dependents' educational assistance get tutorial assistance while attending school?

A. Tutorial assistance may be paid to eligible persons receiving dependents' educational assistance. However, there is a prohibition against a close relative tutoring the claimant.

Q. I have just been rated 100 percent permanently and totally disabled by the Veterans Administration and have applied for waiver of my military retired pay. Can I have my Survivors' Benefit Program premium paid out of my compensation benefits?

A. The Veterans Administration will authorize deductions from compensation for the purpose of paying SBP premiums. You must notify the Veterans Administration in writing of your intentions since the deduction is not automatic.

Q. Have there been any changes in the law regarding reimbursement for flight training?

A. For anyone enrolling in flight training for the first time after Oct. 1, 1980, the rate of reimbursement is limited to 60 percent of the established charges (Public Law 96-466).

Q. I am enrolled in school under the GI Bill, but my payments have been delayed because this is my second change of program. The VA has sent me a letter requesting information concerning my aptitude, abilities and interests. Am I required to respond to this letter?

A. The VA needs the information requested to determine whether your second change of program is suitable for you. You can either provide the information or you can request counseling from the VA. If you have obtained non-VA counseling, the results would be helpful to the VA in processing your change.

Q. I am 72 years of age and did not receive an Annual Income Questionnaire with my pension check on Nov. 1, 1980, although I have always received them in past years. Should I have received the Annual Income Questionnaire card this year or do I not need to report any longer?

A. Claimants, aged 72 or older, who have been receiving VA pension benefits for the last two years (Under law in effect prior to Dec. 31, 1978), are not being sent an annual income questionnaire.

Q. An error was made on my separation paper when I was discharged from military service. How may I have it corrected?

A. The Secretary of a military department has authority to correct any military records. Applications for correction (DD Form 149) are available at any VA office.

Today is the start of National Wildlife Week in the state of Mississippi.

More and more support for the protection of wildlife seems to be generating and it is good. Our forefathers depended upon wildlife for survival.

In recent generations many species have just about been wiped out.

It is very interesting in Mississippi that the Departments of Wildlife Conservation and Forestry Commission are working together to promote wildlife production and conservation.

We see the stacks of bird feed in our stores which means many residents are feeding wild birds during the winter.

This is good because it helps our feathered friends during times when feed is scarce.

Wildlife is important, we are glad Mississippians are doing their part in helping wildlife management.

We feel it was a real honor for Bay St. Louis Patrolmen Harris Boudreaux and Alvin Favre to receive Red Cross Awards of Valor for risking their lives while on duty.

Boudreaux and Favre apprehended a woman on Main Street waving a pistol several months ago.

Mayor Larry Bennett made the presentation during the American Red Cross—Hancock County Chapter's Awards Banquet last weekend.

Many other awards were given during the banquet to deserving persons and we congratulate them all.

Baseball season is now in full swing in local high schools.

We hope many of you will try and see your favorite team play some afternoon.

We realize timing is off because of the hour games are played and we hope those of you available at game time will attend.

The Bottom Line

Candid Answers To Your Questions About Advertising and Business Topics.

By S. GALE DENLEY
Associate Professor of Journalism
University of Mississippi

I'm trying to set up budgets for next year, based on today's figures. But with the recession, and its many manifestations, I'm not sure this is realistic. What Do You Think?

Dear WDT: Someone once observed that the real need in the business world is "one armed economists."

This would preclude the everpresent hedge toward the end of almost every discourse on the state of the economy, usually accompanied with the backward wave of an arm. "However, on the other hand."

Today's economists are less generally dogmatic than in previous times. They usually, quite honestly, make their forecasts contingent on a series of very real factors, including foreign oil supply and price, weather, government economic policy, etc. For people like you and me, it still means we get no straight answers.

But most economists feel that we are coming out of the recession, and coming out at a higher rate than in previous recessions.

And as the factors that caused the initial inflation are still present, we can expect an annual rate of 8 to 10 per cent, depending on the price of imported oil (now you've got me doing it).

So you need to anticipate increased costs averages to 10 per cent. Most economists, cutting costs to balance the budget. But you can also anticipate increased income from sales and services, if you continue to maintain inventories and promote wisely.

This would include promoting new lines when they arrive, rather than waiting until the end of the season and trying to sell at reduced prices. It makes more sense to sell out at 10 to 20 per cent off, early in the season, than to try to unload out of season at up to 50 per cent off.

Also by concentrating your promotional efforts with local media you will probably get better rates, usually based on volume or frequency. And you will find that by being a regular you will get better service.

Therefore, I guess my answer is that the recession will probably be over before your budget goes into effect, but that we will still be confronted by inflation.

You and everyone would be wise to monitor costs more carefully, but don't jeopardize your business by over-reduction of inventories and promotion cutbacks.

Poison Prevention Week begins today

Poisons act fast. So do kids. This is the theme for National Poison Prevention Week, March 15-21.

"This week reminds adults of their responsibilities of protecting those who cannot protect themselves," says Susie Overstreet, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service health education specialist.

Each year more than 700,000 children accidentally poison themselves, and 2,000 die by drinking cleaning fluids, eating aspirin or swallowing other dangerous substances found around the average home.

"Children are curious by nature," she says. "They want to find out about everything around them. Unlike adults, who usually approach the unknown with caution and perhaps fear, children plunge fearlessly into all sorts of situations as they explore."

Exploring the environment is the way a child learns. The baby in a crib early begins to examine everything around him. As he begins to crawl and walk, the child touches, feels and tastes all that he can reach or find. As he grows, he is able to get to more places and find more things to examine. As the child begins to climb, high shelves and cabinets come within his reach.

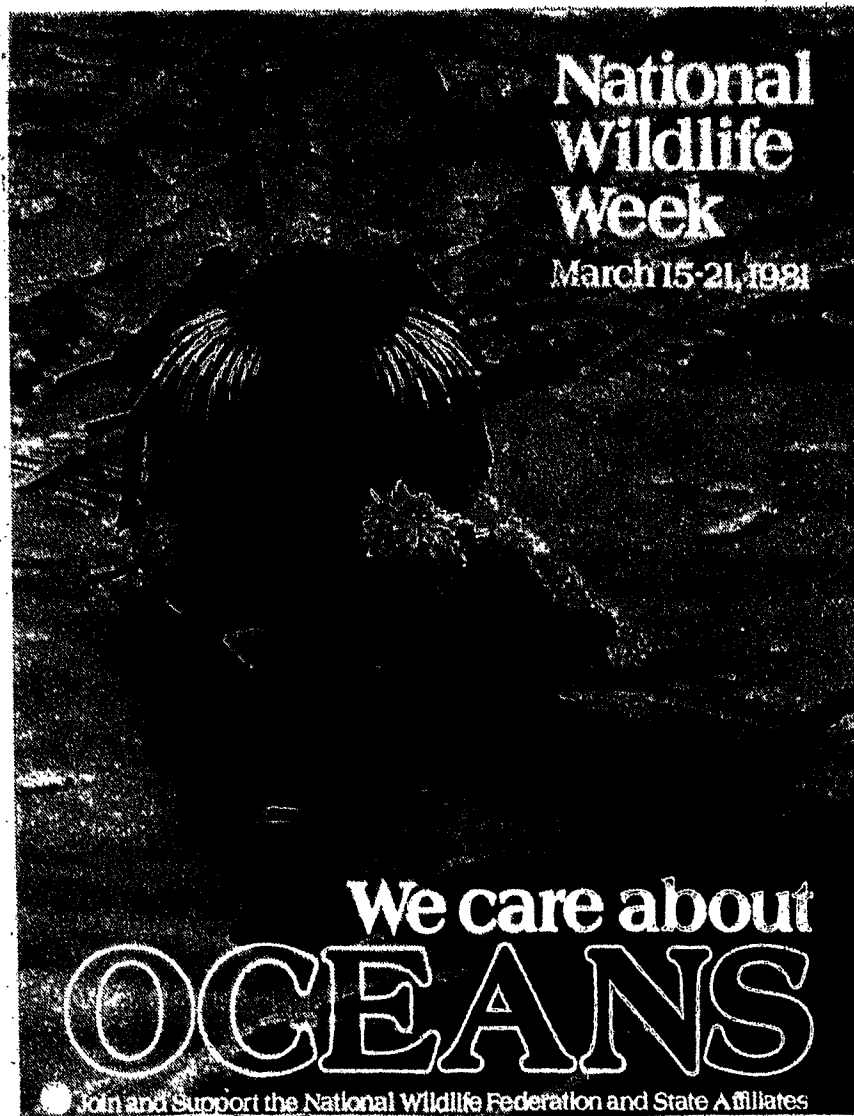

"Poison prevention emphasizes the proper use and storage of medicines and household products," Miss Overstreet says. "Be sure that any substance is used only as directed, so it cannot produce harmful effects. Obviously, a child cannot read the directions or warnings. Even if verbal warnings are given, remember that the child's memory may be short. He may not be able to recall an explanation of danger or realize its meaning. It is the adult's responsibility to take precautions and to be alert.

"If children are to be protected during the formative years, it will be necessary to rearrange the storage of medicines and household products as the child's reach mobility and ingenuity increase. What may have been safe storage when the child could only crawl becomes challenging as he climbs to the counter and reaches into the cabinet," she adds. If you are interrupted by a telephone or doorbell while you are using a potentially dangerous product, keep it in your hand, she suggests.

Be aware of the potential dangers. Remember: If a child can't see it, he probably will not search for it. If the storage area is locked, the child won't be able to get to it.

Know what to do in case, despite all precautions, a child swallows a substance which could be harmful. Call your doctor, hospital emergency room, the police or other emergency service immediately. Keep calm, briefly explain what has happened and ask what to do until help arrives. It will save valuable time if you have emergency numbers posted on or near your phone.

WILDLIFE WEEK—A playful sea otter, munching on a hapless sea urchin, is the "poster animal" for the 1981 National Wildlife Week poster. This often-comic marine mammal was chosen to illustrate this year's "We Care About Oceans" theme because he is vulnerable to water pollution from chemicals, wastes and oil spills along the California Coast. He also plays a key role in the ecosystem of that area by consuming sea urchins, which would devour and destroy kelp "forests" along the West Coast if their population grew unchecked. Kelp is useful as a human food supplement and a fertilizer. This sea otter was photographed for the National Wildlife Federation by Stephen J. Krasemann. More than a million posters have been distributed by NWF, which has sponsored National Wildlife Week since 1938.

Historian compares Vietnam, El Salvador

Editor's note: The following article on El Salvador and Vietnam by Dr. David Tucker, an instructor in history at the University of Chicago who is writing a book on Vietnam, is supplied to the Sea Coast Echo by Public Research, Syndicated of Claremont, Calif.

As the public debate over El Salvador intensifies, the comparisons with Vietnam grow more frequent and more impassioned.

The themes are by now familiar. A repressive right-wing regime, favoring the landed and the wealthy, has caused the people of El Salvador to rise spontaneously and demand justice.

As in Vietnam, the U.S. supports this repressive government with economic and military aid.

There are ominous reports of U.S. military advisors already in El Salvador and of plans to increase them.

Granted, their numbers are small, but didn't our involvement in Vietnam begin with only a few advisors? As an unnamed Mexican official put it, "U.S. military involvement threatens to Vietnamize the region."

From the Salvadoran guerrillas and their supporters in this country we hear charges of U.S. colonialism and imperialism reminiscent of the charges made against our policy in Vietnam.

In the misguided pursuit of our own interests the U.S. is said to collaborate with a terror-wielding junta to obstruct the legitimate aspirations of "the people."

El Salvador is no more a "vital interest" than Vietnam.

We must let the Salvadoran people work out their own fate, and not be goaded on by an inordinate fear of Castroite Communism.

The worst thing we can do is intervene, create another Vietnam and suffer all the domestic anguish and international disgrace that accompanied that last war.

Vietnam should teach us, or so it is said, that the world would be better off if only the U.S. would end its involvement in El Salvador.

The people of El Salvador would escape the ravages of war. The U.S. Would not get bogged down in a war it cannot win, supporting a government that does not have the support of the people.

And the international community would be spared the trauma of another American crusade against a mythical world-wide communist movement.

The comparison of Vietnam and El Salvador can be enlightening, but not for the reasons usually advanced. An accurate comparison might even lead us to approve U.S. involvement in El Salvador.

In Vietnam we were not battling a spontaneous popular revolution. The National Liberation Front, purportedly an independent coalition of groups opposed to the U.S.-supported regime, was in fact controlled by North Vietnam, as were the Viet Cong.

North Vietnamese regular army units, supplied by the Soviet Union, and not the peasant forces of the Viet Cong, captured Saigon on April 30, 1975.

A few months before, these units had invaded the south, pushing across the demilitarized zone that separated

North from South Vietnam. We ought to keep this in mind when we hear reports of arms, by way of Cuba and Nicaragua, reaching insurgents in El Salvador.

Since the people of El Salvador did not rise to support the recent general offensive by the insurgents, we should also keep in mind the similar failure of the people of South Vietnam to rise and support the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong general offensives in 1968 and 1972.

This failure frustrated the expectations of the North Vietnamese and belied their claims that the population of South Vietnam supported the political and social organization ultimately imposed on them by the force of North Vietnamese arms.

We should treat stories of the idealism and compassion of the insurgents in El Salvador with skepticism. During the war in Vietnam, there were streams of allegations of atrocities and was crimes perpetrated by the U.S. and the South Vietnamese.

We seldom heard of the massacres and the torture carried out by the Viet Cong, or of their systematic assassination and mutilation of village chiefs in an attempt to intimidate the populace.

Little was said about the slaughter by North Vietnamese and Viet Cong of more than 2,000 civilians in Hue in 1968.

In Vietnam we fought a brutal enemy that was made to appear compassionate and even humanitarian.

The discrepancy between what actually occurred in Vietnam and what we heard about it here should warn us to look carefully at what we now hear about El Salvador.

Even those who wish to report accurately may be unable to do so because of the chaos and confusion of war-time conditions in a foreign country.

Finally, we ought to be wary of the suggestion that if the U.S. would only pull out of El Salvador, everything would be all right.

Did our departure from South East Asia solve that region's problems? Clearly not.

The suffering has spread, and the region has become even more subject to outside influence.

Several nations in the area asked the Japanese Prime Minister during his recent tour to build up Japanese military power in order to offset growing Russian dominance.

The most common comparisons of Vietnam and El Salvador rest on a misunderstanding of Vietnam. The conclusion reached by way of this comparison—that we ought to get out of El Salvador lest we "Vietnamize the region"—must therefore be suspect.

This does not mean that a more accurate understanding of what happened in Vietnam must persuade us to get deeply involved in El Salvador.

No such comparison is a sufficient guide for our policy. We must look squarely at the facts in this case and decide.

But we should not be frightened from pursuing a sound foreign policy by the bogeyman's slogan "No More Vietnam."

Divorcee's spouse backs Green on support law objections

Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

To The Editor,
Hats off to David Green for speaking up about our child support laws. As a wife of a once divorced man, I sympathize with and support his views one hundred percent.

It appears to be common practice to set a criminal, even those guilty of severe crimes, free while the penalty for missing a child support check will definitely land a person in jail, unless of course he chooses to move constantly from state to state and be hounded.

I feel that when a woman agrees to divorce a man she relinquishes her rights to any marriage rights that ever existed.

It doesn't seem fair for the ex-husband to always be the one to pay for a two-way lifestyle. I feel it is then the duty of her new spouse to provide for his newly accepted family.

Dredging veteran scoffs at Corps plan to deepen Mississippi River

March 6, 1981
The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis
Dear Editor,

I have been intrigued, fascinated, and thoroughly appalled at the recent flap relative to the proposed project by the Corps of Engineers to create a deep-draft access from the mouth of the Mississippi River to Baton Rouge.

Having spent 45 years of my life in the dredging business, primarily on the Mississippi River, perhaps the word "appalled" is the understatement of the year to describe my feelings about this project.

Horrified, disbelieving, incredulous, and disgusted would more aptly convey my reactions to this project.

The Corps has estimated that this project will cost about $410 million, with another $75 million required annually to maintain the 55-foot depth. I am not an engineer or a mathematician, but I know the Mississippi River.

Using statistics published by the Corps of Engineers and my pocket calculator, I have made some calculations which any sixth-grader could understand:

It is approximately 200 miles from the mouth of the River to Baton Rouge. The River, at the present time, is supposed to be maintained at a depth of 40 feet, in a channel approximately 500 feet wide.

In order to deepen the river to 55 feet, it would be necessary to move 293 million cubic yards of material from the bottom of the river.

If one 27-inch dredge attempted to do the job, it would take 195 months to move this amount of material; it would take 16-27-inch dredges one year to complete the job.

But this does not include the daily average of 500,000 cubic yards of new material which the U.S. Geological Survey Water Data Report, Vol. 2, Southern Louisiana, says comes down the river every day of the year.

Based on current going rates for dredging, approximately $4.50 per yard to pump material to a landfill more than two miles from the river, it would cost $1,318,000,000 to move the 293 million cubic yards necessary to lower the river to 55 feet; it would cost an additional $821,000,000 to move the additional 550,000 cubic yards of new material which arrives each day at any given spot on the river.

In other words, it would take roughly $2 billion a year, the first year alone, to accomplish the job. And, no doubt, every year after that, another $2 billion would be needed.

Through the cost of this foolhardy venture is mind-boggling, there is yet another problem that no one seems to have considered. What on earth would you do with 293 million cubic yards of material? ...let alone the additional 500,000 cubic yards of new material each day?

Would you pump it over the levee into the cane fields and cotton fields? The material is primarily sand, so I doubt the farmers would care to have it dumped in their fields. Sand is no good for levee-building, so it couldn't be used to shore up the levee. Besides, 293 million cubic yards of material would roughly amount to a 3-foot high, 3-foot wide mound of material eight times around the equator.

If you could find some place to put 293 million cubic yards of material, what would it cost to get it there?

The sad realities of this proposal lead me to believe that the Corps would like to spend $410 million on feasibility studies, grants, studies of studies, surveys, and the like; and another $75 million a year for many years thereafter, only to come to the conclusion somewhere down the line, that it just isn't possible.

Anyone who knows the power of the river, the antics of the current, and the delicacy of the levee system at this time, knows that this particular project is one of the most hairbrained ever proposed by the Corps.

I might add, this is just the very worst in a long, long list of hairbrained schemes the Corps has perpetrated on the trusting public.

The Corps' position that the economy will benefit 8½ times the cost of the project—even if the project cost $410 million (which is ridiculous) — is in itself ridiculous.

I am reminded of a job with which I was associated a number of years ago. A very wealthy man who had mining interests in the iron mines at the foot of the Andes Mountains had a grand scheme similar to that proposed by the Corps for the Mississippi River.

The Orinoco River in Venezuela is the second largest river system in South America, 1700 miles long, 3.5 miles wide at its widest, with 700 miles of navigable waterway.

The problem that millionaire Ludwig faced was that large ships could not navigate to his mines and return down the river fully loaded, since the ships drew 45 feet with a full load.

Mr. Ludwig proposed to deepen the Orinoco by dredging so that his ships could navigate to the mines and return with full loads, proceeding to Mobile, where my dredging company was in the process of building a transfer terminal which would allow the cargo to continue overland and by barge on to Birmingham.

One dredge was purchased, and after one year of work it had been able to progress 500 feet up the Orinoco River. Then five dredges were purchased and continued to work full tilt until Mr. Ludwig gave up the project.

Needless to say, not one ship ever left those mines with more than a half-load. I am really at a loss to figure out how in the world the Corps came up with the mere pittance of $410 million to complete this job. Undoubtedly, they did not use their own data, or they would surely realize that their calculations are about $1.5 billion off the mark.

Furthermore, it is time some of us recognized a few truths that any fisherman or dredgeboater or sailor or pilot or woodsman has known since the beginning of time: there are some things in nature that cannot be harnessed or controlled; their power is so stupendous and staggering that the human mind cannot even begin to comprehend.

Hurricanes and tornadoes and whirlwinds and earthquakes fall into this category. Ole Man River has been harnessed to a degree—but we should never, never underestimate the awesome power of 500,000 cubic feet of water per second (mean annual average) which flows down its 4,200 miles each day! Preposterous!

Heaven forbid that a trusting public will buy this crazy scheme in the false hope that a few more tons of coal will make it to Baton Rouge on a few less ships.

Earth's oceans could 'die,' Wildlife group warns

Can anything so vast as the oceans—which cover nearly three-fourths of the earth's surface—really be in danger of dying? The answer is "yes."

Walter Cronkite

—unless they are treated with more respect. For the immense oceans are in fact a single, fragile ecosystem. That's the message the National Wildlife Federation is emphasizing during its annual observance of National Wildlife Week, March 16 through 21.

The theme of this year's National Wildlife Week, which NWF has sponsored for 44 years, is "We Care About Oceans."

It's the first time a Wildlife Week theme has focused on the sea.

"For centuries we have taken from the ocean's riches, and with a growing world population we will turn more and more to this bountiful resource," explained Thomas L. Kimball, executive vice president of the NWF.

"We must stop polluting and treating the oceans carelessly, for a threat to the oceans is a threat to our own futures."

Valuable ocean resources include: —Food: About 10 percent of the world's protein comes from the oceans; some countries rely on the ocean for as much as three-fourths of their protein. We already catch about 60 million tons of food from the sea each year, and with new techniques of ocean farming, called "mariculture," scientists predict that we could grow some 100 million tons. In addition, the seaweeds found along the coasts are among the oceans' most valuable living resources, for food, and for the chemical and industrial products derived from the plants.

—Minerals: About 90 percent of the world's bromine is found in the sea. There is enough copper on the ocean bottom to last the world 6,000 years, and enough nickel to last 150,000 years. Other elements, minerals, and organic compounds found in the oceans include magnesium, chlorine, sulfur, boron, iodine, calcium, silicon, carbon, and phosphorus.

—Energy: The oceans have become an important source of oil and gas, and today offshore wells are producing petroleum around the globe. Scientists are studying various ways to tap the oceans' enormous energy potential. Possibilities include thermal water decomposition, tidal power, and ocean thermal energy conversion. The U.S. Department of Energy estimates that 180 million kilowatt-hours of power—about 75 times as much as we used last year—could be generated annually along the Gulf Stream flowing along the East Coast if the current could be harnessed.

—Recreation: Huge industries have grown around our love of swimming, fishing, boating, scuba diving, and snorkeling. In addition, the oceans are a reservoir for more than 97 percent of the world's water supply. Through a natural process known as the hydrologic cycle, water is continuously transported from the seas to the land, and back again, providing water for plants and animals. Life-supporting oxygen comes to us from the oceans, too. Some scientists believe that the oceans' onecelled plants, phytoplankton, supply more oxygen to the atmosphere than all the forests on earth.

"With all that the oceans give us it is ironic that we have treated them as bottomless dumping grounds," said Kimball. "We've polluted the seas with oil, pesticides and other chemicals, radioactive compounds, sewage, sludge, and toxic heavy metals, such as mercury and lead."

"The most heavily polluted ocean waters are those shallow waters near land, and this is unfortunate, because most marine life is concentrated in the four percent of the ocean relatively close to land. Even the most far-off waters do not escape, however, for the oceans' efficient circulatory system—currents which carry oxygen and nutrients from one sea to another, thus joining them into a single ecosystem—carry pollutants across the globe."

For example, radioisotopes from atmospheric nuclear bomb tests are appearing in Antarctica's Southern Ocean, once thought to be pristine, are toxic heavy metals, released from the burning of fuels in far-off industrialized countries.

"Fortunately, we have taken the first steps toward insuring a cleaner, healthier ocean," Kimball noted. "A new federal law requires that dumping of municipal sewage sludge be halted by the end of this year. And just last year, the NWF won three lawsuits it had filed against government agencies. As a result, ocean dumping of dredged harbor bottom spoils, often badly contaminated with heavy metals and oil, will be strictly controlled."

"Clearly, healthy oceans are vital to all of us, no matter where we live—by the sea or far inland," Kimball emphasized. "During Wildlife Week we hope concerned Americans will take the time to learn how the oceans' resources can be managed more wisely, and will join us in saying, 'We Care About Oceans.'"

TV news anchorman Walter Cronkite is chairman of this year's National Wildlife Week observance. The "week" was first proclaimed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1938 as a means of educating the public and rallying support for wildlife conservation measures.

Jockey in narrow escape at Downs

Special to The Sea Coast Echo: Pearl River, JoAnn Boatwright, jockey, apparently was undaunted by a nasty looking spill she took Sunday in the fourth race when her mount bolted into the outside rail.

JoAnn shook it off and went on to win five races for a total of six on the day.

She was aboard Star in the 3-mile fourth when the horse darted to the outside rail, flipped over and for a few seconds drug the jockey whose foot was caught momentarily in the stirrup.

Suzanne Alexander rode Bull Dragon for the win, but only after easing the horse in the stretch.

A big attraction Sunday was the 150-yard fifth race featuring three Shetland ponies and a mule. The winner was Price, owned by Dick Mulford of Wiggins, Miss.

A number of ponies are expected to return next Sunday for trophy competition.

The best time of the day for 350 yards was turned in by Tommy Johnson's Weasel in the seventh race. Weasel was clocked in a Class AA time of :18.59, with Jay's Bumper second at :18.77.

E.C. Peeples' Copper turned in a fine time of :20.76 in taking the 400-yard 10th race against Some Kind of Bad, :20.87.

John Paul Amacker of Poplarville, last year's leading trainer at Oak Downs, won two races, but he had to run one of his horses, Omega Diana, twice in order to accomplish that feat.

Amacker's April's Injun took the 300-yard 12th with a solid :16.57 clocking, and Omega Diana captured the 100-yard 13th against More Jet with a time of :6.61. In the eighth race, Omega Diana had lost to Donna in a 220-yard test.

St. Pat's boxing special on Ch. 3

Lightweight Sean O'Grady, who lost a controversial bout with WBC champion Jim Watt in October, will fight Jose Cabrera in a live St. Patrick's Day boxing special on ESPN Hancock Cable Channel 3, March 17 at 8 p.m. from the Fairgrounds Arena in O'Grady's hometown of Oklahoma City.

The bout should serve as a tuneup for O'Grady, who has signed to fight WBA lightweight champion Hilmer Kenty in April.

The WBA recently installed O'Grady as its number one challenger, citing "numerous sources indicating that O'Grady was caused serious injustices" in his loss to Watt, October 31 in Glasgow, Scotland.

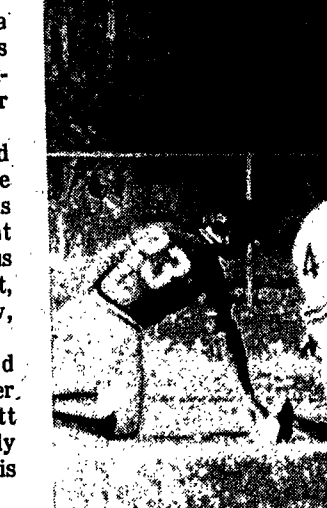

O'Grady's father and manager, Pat, charged after the fight that Watt deliberately and illegally butted O'Grady to retain his title.

The 22-year-old O'Grady, who often serves as an analyst on the ESPN-Top Rank Thursday night boxing series, has a 73-2 record with 65 knockouts, the most of any active professional fighter. He is the United States Boxing Association's lightweight champion.

Cabrera is 15-5-1 with 10 knockouts, and in 1980 lost in a ninth-round knockout to Ralph Aviles, the fourth-ranked lightweight by the WBA.

Sal Marchiano and Al Bernstein will call the action.

and utility bills.

"The main thing is to spend taxes more efficiently," he said.

He added, "I think the city government can be run much better."

"The mayor is an administrative officer," he said. "Basically he controls the day-to-day operations of the city."

Frankiewicz noted those operations include administering the utility department.

"You can save the city money in the long run with good routine maintenance of the drainage, water, gas and sewer systems," he said.

"It doesn't cost any more to do it right and you end up saving money," Frankiewicz said.

He said the city spent some $200,000 in repair work, according to a 1980 audit.

"That kind of thing gets passed on through utility bills—with good routine maintenance you can cut back on that."

Frankiewicz said the city also is losing 15 percent of its gas from leaks and again noted routine repair work will save money.

Frankiewicz also mentioned pot holes in the street.

"The way they are repaired now is not properly done," he said and mentioned the grading of city drainage ditches.

"They are little things, but if you use money and equipment more efficiently you will improve all that," he said.

He also stated he wanted to 'work very hard' to create good relations between the mayor's office and the city council.

Frankiewicz said he had been a proponent of the Gulf Coast Regional Wastewater Authority.

"I think it was the most cost effective way to go. Now we are going to have to sit down with Waveland and actively pursue the matter which is something that has not been done."

On the issue of the closed workshop meetings held by the council every other Thursday night, Frankiewicz said, "Personally, I do not like secret meetings. I haven't been so I can't say if they have been productive or not. However the mayor does not have control over the council."

Frankiewicz said he was a member of the citizens committee which helped establish the current form of city government.

He said he personally mapped the areas which currently form the five different wards.

Seymour, 47, said, "I think I have learned a lot in my first four years in office. I think I can put that knowledge to good use if I happen to be reelected this next term."

He said the major issues facing the next council are problems with city drainage, sewerage, street and gas line repairs.

"We will have to see how much money we have to deal with these four major problems," Seymour said.

"I have only one vote," he added. "But I definitely feel these issues should be considered. It is up to the council to decide what is considered important and the new council will have to sit down and decide what issues are given top priority."

Seymour has been an advocate of a county-run wastewater program.

Farve, employee of Alcan Cable Company, said in a hurried interview from his job Friday, "I feel I have done a pretty good job representing my district and I feel I can contribute to the growth of the city."

Farve said the major issues are city drainage and street repairs.

"I should be reelected because I was involved in obtaining the money allocated by Housing and Urban Development to the city."

"Most of that money is going into my district and I feel the people need somebody with my knowledge to distribute it."

Clarence Ladner, 65, said, "I will have time on my hands now I have retired and I have quite a few years experience which I hope to contribute to the city of Bay St. Louis."

Ladner was a former school teacher in Bay St. Louis and a member of the state legislature for four years between 1960 and 1964.

He retired December 31, 1981 as director of Petroleum Tax Division for the Mississippi State Motor Vehicle Comptroller Department.

He said that office handles $150,000,000 of tax money annually.

"With the federal government pulling out of programs benefiting municipalities I feel the issues will be finding the necessary funds to give services to the city with the taxes that we know have," he said.

"I feel my experience in taxation, knowledge of city and state, and cooperation with the state government will be of some benefit to the community," he stated.

He added, "I know ways of we can avail ourselves of programs which the state offers."

On the wastewater issue, Ladner said, "I feel the question needs deeper study and I don't know enough to express my opinion at this time."

"Naturally I would be for the system which benefits the citizens of Bay St. Louis the most," he noted.

On the closed workshop sessions conducted at city hall by council members Ladner said, "I do not think workshops are necessary. I think the councilmen and mayor should meet as often as they can to discuss what may come up in a meeting, but I don't see anything I would do to bar the media from being there."

Charles Johnson, 30, said, "A lot of people have come by and asked me why don't I run."

"The reason I am running is to help people. I like people no matter what their race creed or color," he added.

Johnson said he brought messages from the people of his ward to the mayor of Bay St. Louis when streets were being torn up last year and garbage was unable to be collected in that area.

"I worked with the people in the community and I thought I did a pretty good job. If something went wrong then they would call me," he said.

In reference to his job as driver and clerk for the RSVP, Johnson said, "You have to love people to have the job I have. The job is nothing you can fake. You have to really care for people and have patience. I think I have both those qualities."

In terms of the wastewater issue, Johnson said, "I am not for having any wastewater treatment."

"If the people were able to afford it then I think we should have one, but how can people afford to have a wastewater system with taxes as high as they are?"

On closed meetings conducted by councilmen, Johnson said, "I want to do the right thing. I think if we do the right thing we will get along better with the public. I think that would include letting anybody attend the meetings."

Clyde Ladner, currently on vacation from his job at South Central Bell, could not be reached at his home or place of employment.

Board OK's intercom

By BRENT MACEY

The Hancock County School Board Saturday approved advertising for a separate intercom system to be installed in Hancock North Central Elementary School.

The broadcast intercom system from the Hancock North Central High School principal's office currently connects both the elementary and high schools.

Board member Woodrow Ladner said, "The elementary school needs to be on its own separate system from the high school."

John Mykolyk, designer of the new system, said the new system will connect the elementary school principal's office with all students in the elementary school and will also connect the elementary school principal's office to the high school principal's office.

"The high school office will have the option of speaking to both schools or just the high school," he said.

Mykolyk said the new system will cost approximately $6,000, and will use the old wiring and speakers currently in the schools.

"Purchasing a new console for the elementary school will be most of the cost," he said.

Conduit will also have to be installed to 'keep the wire from dangling like spaghetti,' he added.

He said the system has the potential to be enlarged to include more features at a later date.

According to Mykolyk, Hancock North Central High School principal Donald Hillman wanted a system which would allow his office to contact individual classrooms in both schools.

That system would cost about $20,000," he said.

He said the principal currently cannot contact individual classrooms in the school because two and three classrooms are connected per circuit.

"If he wants to talk to one classroom then three other classrooms are included," Mykolyk said.

Purchasing another bigger console to handle more circuits at the high school would be necessary to alleviate that problem, he said.

Board President Monvel Cuevas voted against advertising for the new system along with board member Johnny Banks.

Both felt the system was too expensive and did not solve all the problems existing in the present system.

Suicide, drug abuse program set for chaplains, ministers

Memorial Hospital at Gulfport will host the first in a series of workshops for its hospital chaplains and area ministers Thursday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The workshop, titled "Some Very Good Information On Suicide And Drug Abuse And How To Deal With The People Involved," will feature Dr. Henry Maggio of Waveland, psychiatrist and a member of the hospital's medical staff. Dr. Maggio will begin the program with a session on "Suicide Touches All Ages." Dr. Robert E. Pearce, director of pastoral counseling, the consultation center, and clinical pastoral education at Southern Baptist Hospital in New Orleans, and Ms. Judy Nelson, supervisory resident in the chaplain program there, will discuss "What Do You Say To Someone Who Says, 'I Don't Want To Live'."

Discussion periods follow each segment. "Dealing With Drug Abuse" will be handled by Eddie Hodges, assistant coordinator of substance abuse services at the Gulf Coast Mental Health Center.

The second portion on drug abuse, "Caution: It Could Be Habit Forming," will be discussed by Larry Bein, director of christian counseling services in Gulfport. This subject deals with the problem people sometimes find themselves in with dependence on legally prescribed drugs that may be abused.

Following a buffet lunch, a brief in-basket session will involve the ministers in "What Would You Do If...?" The workshop will conclude with the director of social services at GMH, Mrs. Jane Bennett, providing a list of resources for assistance with counseling or referral on the subjects.

The workshop and lunch are free but registration must be made by noon Tuesday at the latest.

Future workshops will deal with other social diseases encountered by chaplains and ministers such as child abuse, incest, alcohol and battered wives or husbands.

The Chaplain Service at Memorial is a volunteer program open to all area ministers.

DRUG QUIZ

Michigan Institute for Social Research survey shows that seniors who plan to complete four years of college have lower rates of illicit drug use than those who are not college-bound.

Annual marijuana use is reported by 47% of the college-bound and by 52% of those not heading for college. This trend is constant for all the specific illicit drugs. Frequent alcohol use also is more prevalent among the non-college bound (7.3% of the non-college-bound drink daily, while only 4.1% of those who intend to go to college do.)

The largest difference shows up in the daily smoking data. Only 11% of the college-bound smoke half-a-pack or more daily, while 26% of those not bound for college are half-a-pack-a-day smokers. Correct answer - a.

BY DR. L.S. WALKER

Let me share with you some inspiring lines which came to my study many years ago. I do not recall who may have penned these provoking lines, but they captivated my deepest interest and revealed again the efficacy and beauty of Christian character.

The brief bit is entitled: "What the World is looking for." A better title would be: "What the World needs..."

"The world is looking for men who are not for sale, men who are honest, sound from center to circumference, true to the heart's core; men with conscience as steady as the needle to the pole; men who will stand for right if the heavens totter and the earth reels; men who will tell the truth and look the world right in the eye; men who neither drag nor run, men who neither flag nor flinch.

Men who can have courage without shouting it; men in whom courage of everlasting life runs still deep and strong; men who know their message and tell it; men who know their place and fill it; men who know their business and attend to it; men who will not lie, shirk nor dodge; men who are not too lazy to work, nor too proud to be poor (when honor and providence make it necessary); men who are willing to eat what they have earned and wear what they have paid for; men who are not ashamed to say "No" with emphasis, and who are not ashamed to say, "I can't afford it!"

Solomon, Israel's wise king, said, "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor rather than silver and gold" - Prov. 22:1.

The Apostle Paul counseled: "That everyone of you should know how to possess his vessel in sanctification and honour" - I Thess. 4:4.

Josiah Gilbert Holland, somewhat prayerfully, wrote:

"God, give us men! A time like this demands: strong minds, great hearts, true faith and ready hands;

"Men whom the lust of office does not kill; men whom the spoils of office cannot buy;

"Men who possess opinions and a will; men who have honor; men who will not lie;

"Men who can stand before a demagogue and damn his treacherous flatteries without winking! Tall men, sun-crowned, who live above the fog, in public duty and in private thinking.

In the Divine purpose of the Creator, each of us is given life upon earth. He will bless it to be beautiful and worthwhile if we will so commit it to Him.

Award winning Tiger band seeks $4,000 to attend festival

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
Hancock County businessmen will soon be receiving a letter asking for contributions to the Bay High Tiger Pride Band.

The Bay High Tiger Pride Band-Aids, an adult fund raising organization, is attempting to collect some $4,000 in donations to pay expenses for the some 50 member band to attend the 13th Annual Six Flags Over Georgia Band Festival in Atlanta.

The festival is set for April 24-25. Band members and the organization have already generated some $4,000 by selling cheese, poboys and candles and by sponsoring fund raising parties.

The band organization and members are now selling milk chocolate candy bars dubbed 'the world's finest candy' to raise additional funds.

Bay High's band is also preparing for state solo, duet, ensemble, concert and marching band competitions scheduled at the beginning of April in Jackson.

Fund Raising Chairman Dan Welch says the band was recently invited to the Atlanta competition due to its 'outstanding ratings' in several other band festivals.

In October the band earned all superior ratings (the highest competition award) at the Deep South Marching Band Festival at Ladd Stadium in Mobile, Ala., Welch reports.

"At the recent Sixth Annual Picayune Marching Band Festival the band earned all superior and excellent (the second highest award) ratings," Welch adds.

A letter to Bay High Band Director Glen Page from Six Flags Festival Programs Director Clyde M. Barr states, "The festival will be conducted in the Georgia World Congress Center located in downtown Atlanta."

"Last year, 59 bands representing 17 states participated in the festival," Barr says.

"We are quite proud of the educational value a director and his students are able to receive through participation in the festivals," he continues.

"Participation in an event such as our festival cannot help but provide a positive and favorable enhancement to one's school music program," Barr states.

Carolyn Hamilton is Bay

High's assistant band director. Welch expresses his thanks to the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, Cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland, Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District Board of Trustees, American Legion Post No. 189 in Bay St. Louis, County Coroner Carl Banderet and Clarence M. Ladner for donations to the band.

"We feel that our band is one of the best in the state and hope our trip will bring Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Hancock County to the attention of the people of Georgia," Welch says.

The letter to be mailed to local merchants will contain the signatures of Page, Welch, and Tiger Pride Co-Chairman Lamar Crosby. Donations to the band may be mailed to Dan Welch, Tiger Pride Band-Aids, 109 Necaise Ave., Bay St. Louis, Miss. 39520.
